ISLANDTAXI

ANYWHERE ON THE ISLAND. NO QUESTIONS ASKED.

A plugin that puts a taxi company on the island. Pick up any phone — pay phone or mobile — and dial. A dispatcher answers, you pick your ride from an eight-vehicle fleet, drop a pin anywhere on your map, and the fare is quoted before you commit. Then your taxi actually arrives: flies, sails, or drives in from the horizon with a uniformed driver at the controls, picks you up, and takes you there. Cash up front. No refunds — island policy.

ACTUAL GAME CHAT

Island Taxi: Put the phone away (ESC or click outside it), then open your map (G) and place a marker where you want to go. You have 120 seconds. Type /taxi cancel to abort.
Island Taxi: Charged 138 scrap. Your ride is being dispatched!
Island Taxi: Your Minicopter is on the way - about 24 seconds out. Listen for the rotors!
Island Taxi: Your taxi has landed - walk up to board.
Island Taxi: Buckle up, departing now!
Island Taxi: Serviced territory - we'll set you down at the marked taxi zone there.
Island Taxi: Riding along with your team - hold on!
Island Taxi: Missile lock detected - countermeasures away. Sit tight.
Island Taxi: We don't land inside that compound - no marked landing zone. Drop your pin on open ground outside it.
Island Taxi: You jumped out! The taxi is landing without you. No refunds - island policy.
Island Taxi: You didn't board in time, so your taxi left. No refunds - island policy.
Island Taxi: You've arrived. Thanks for riding Island Taxi!
the empty minicopter lifts off and disappears over the horizon.

Every line is real plugin output. The dispatcher walks new riders through the whole flow — and the island policy on refunds is enforced exactly as advertised.

V1.6 · YOUR RECORD RIDES WITH YOU

PREFERRED CUSTOMER

GOOD CITIZENS RIDE CHEAPER

With Cobalt Papers Please on the server, dispatch checks your file before it sends a car. Citizens get 10% off every fare, and the menu says so in green before you pay.

HAZARD PAY

WANTED? DOUBLE FARE. ENEMY? WALK.

Drivers charge double for the Wanted, because somebody has to pay for the bullet holes. An Enemy of the State is refused a car outright. Cobalt watches the roads, friend. Server operators set the rate for every band.

LAST RELEASE

V1.5 · SURGE PRICING, REAL BOAT ENGINES & POSTERS ON EVERY WALL

STREET TEAM

POSTERS ON EVERY WALL

The department's weathered recruitment posters now hang at bus stops and monuments across the island - sun-faded, rain-stained, stapled up slightly crooked, and repaint-proof (yes, even for admins). Server operators pick the walls with one command; one capture covers every copy of that monument. If you can read the number, you can call the cab.

SURGE PRICING

BUSY HOUR? BUSY METER.

When the island runs hot - three or more rides in an hour - fares climb in posted steps: +25%, +50%, +100%. The menu says so in orange before you pay, the posted rates already include it, and the quote you confirm is the price you're charged. Off-peak riders pay sticker. Supply, meet demand.

MARINE DIVISION

A REAL HAND ON THE THROTTLE

Water taxis are now driven, not towed: real throttle, real rudder, a real wake off the stern. You'll hear the engine idle at the dock and open up on the straights. The helmsman reads the water ahead, steers around icebergs, and ends every pickup with a proper straight-astern back-out before turning for open sea.

MARKED ZONES

MONUMENTS, BY APPOINTMENT

Named monuments are no-fly territory for freelance landings — the department doesn't put skids down inside a compound unless there's a marked taxi zone. Where one exists, pin anywhere nearby and your taxi sets down exactly on the mark. Server operators walk the island and stamp the zones themselves; one mark covers every copy of that monument, wipe after wipe.

OIL RIG

BY AIR AND BY SEA

Both oil rigs are on the route map: helicopter service to the helipad deck, and a boat dock at the boarding ladders — the RHIB noses up to the ladder, holds station while you climb off, then backs straight out to sea. Pickups too: call from the rig and your ride meets you at the mark. The only taxi company with an offshore division.

EXECUTIVE

ARMED AND ARMORED

The Attack Heli seats you behind a company M249 with bottomless ammo, puts HV rockets on your trigger, and pops real flares the instant a homing launcher locks on. Prefer the ground? The Armored Car wraps you and the driver in armor plate, outruns every other car on the island, and hides the radio in the engine bay. Same price. Choose your armor.

TEAM RIDES

THE WHOLE CREW, ONE FARE

Call a Scrap Heli and teammates standing near you are seated automatically when you board — with a last call before liftoff for stragglers. Everyone rides, everyone arrives, everyone gets out together. Herding your team to one rooftop is now the taxi's problem.

FLIGHT SAFETY

CLEARED DESCENT CORRIDORS

Every landing zone is checked with a helicopter-sized sweep from cruise altitude to the ground — rooftops, overhangs, and walls are rejected before you're ever charged. Pilots follow the real terrain, buildings included, and a taxi that can't finish the job sets down safely and tells you so.

THE SERVICE

STANDARDS OF THE DEPARTMENT

SAM CLEARANCE
Aerial taxis broadcast department transponder codes — SAM sites hold fire on the route, yours included. Clearance beats route planning.

UNIFORMED DRIVERS
Every taxi is driven by a uniformed professional — cap, shades, boots. Unarmed, courteous, and utterly indifferent to whatever you're fleeing.

NIGHT SERVICE
Cars, bikes, and boats run lights after dark, dawn to dusk service either way. Boat fares ride up front, out of the glare of the stern light.

WATCH IT ARRIVE
No taxi materializes in front of you. Yours is dispatched 400 m out and travels the whole way in — listen for rotors, hoofbeats, or an engine on the road.

RADIO CABS
Premium cars carry a working dash radio — it clicks on when you board. The driver does not take requests.

CASH OR CREDIT
Economics and ServerRewards balances accepted where installed; plain scrap everywhere else. Fares quoted up front, charged on confirmation.
